Can you confirm if only ignition systems for reciprocating engines are to be considered under this topic or if ignition systems for small jet engines (also for UAS applications are also of interest)

We’re looking for ignition systems for reciprocating engines (or intermittent combustion engines), where robust/reliable ignition for every cycle is critical.